The Dean’s Lecture is a high level series of lectures given by prominent archaeologists and intellectuals, in which they highlight their work and passion.

For these lectures, the Dean of the Faculty of Archaeology invites scholars who look beyond the boundaries of their own field of chronological or topographical specialization, addressing, in a compelling way, our archaeological community at large.

Events archive

- 14 December 2015: African Archaeological Contributions to Understanding Rituals and Religions
- 18 February 2016: The Flow of Ancient Metal across Eurasia (FLAME)
- 21 April 2016: Towards a deep global history of maritime connectivity: perspectives from the Mediterranean and beyond
- 22 September 2016: Early farmers at a marginal zone – the birth of the Central European Neolithic
- 17 November 2016: Dean’s Lecturer Christopher DeCorse
- 16 February 2017: Dean’s Lecturer Rosemary Joyce
- 20 April 2017: Dean’s Lecturer Jean-Jacques Hublin