

MA ARABIC AND ISLAMIC STUDIES PROGRAMME
FALL 2021

29 August – 16 December

Programme Outline

Description

The MA Semester Arabic & Islamic Studies at NVIC is a 30 ECTS programme targeted at MA students in Arabic & Islamic Studies of affiliated Dutch and Flemish universities. It is designed to expand and perfect the students' oral and written skills in Modern Standard and Egyptian Colloquial Arabic, as well as their knowledge of the literature and social, political, and religious phenomena of the Arab world and Egypt in particular. The programme is designed to be complementary to the programmes of participating universities in Flanders and the Netherlands. The NVIC offers the students more practical experience than s/he is able to gain in Flanders or the Netherlands. Additionally, the research skills of the student are further developed, particularly in reference to the writing of an MA dissertation. The MA Semester Arabic & Islamic Studies is an intensive programme. Students are expected to attend and actively participate in classes, and complete regular assignments.

Admission

Admission to the programme is subject to the following conditions:

1. The student has successfully completed a Bachelor in Arabic & Islamic or equivalent;
2. The student has the written permission of a lecturer at the home university to join the programme;
3. The student is registered at one of the affiliated universities during her/his stay in Cairo;
4. The student has acquired a basic proficiency in Egyptian Colloquial Arabic, more specifically the equivalent of the first ten chapters of M. Woidich & R. Heinen-Nasr, Kullu Tamām: Inleiding tot de Egyptische omgangstaal, Amsterdam 2000. This may be achieved as part of a curriculum or through selfstudy.

About NVIC

The Netherlands-Flemish Institute in Cairo (NVIC) is an academic institute located on the island of Zamalek, in the heart of Egypt's bustling capital. It is one of five Dutch Scientific Institutes Abroad (NWIB) and is supported by the Research Fund–Flanders (FWO–Vlaanderen). NVIC provides services to six Dutch and two Flemish universities. It offers undergraduate and graduate programmes in Arabic & Islamic Studies, Middle East Studies, and Egyptology & Archaeology. For more information on NVIC, its staff, its activities, and its teaching programmes, visit <http://www.institutes.leiden.edu/nvic/>

Security and safety in Cairo

In all its activities, NVIC adheres to the security and travel advice of the Dutch and Belgian Embassies in Egypt. We forward any travel or security notice to the students. The student's stay in Cairo is, however, voluntary and their own responsibility. NVIC is not accountable for any harm or damage caused by students to third parties during their stay in Cairo, nor for any physical harm or material loss or damage suffered by the students during their stay. Upon arrival, participants of the programme will be required to sign an indemnification statement. Participants also agree to inform NVIC of any physical or psychological condition that could cause problems during their stay in Cairo or harm NVIC in any way. This information is treated confidentially. Travel and health insurance are not covered by the programme. Please inquire with your public or private insurance provider and take the necessary measures.
