Words of Appreciation from the Editors

Perspectives on Terrorism is entirely the product of volunteers – academics, professionals and practitioners who for twelve consecutive years have been giving their time and providing their expertise to keep this free and independent scholarly online journal alive and increasing in circulation to over 8,200 subscriptions today. While the main burden of producing six issues per year rests on the shoulders of the Editorial Team and those of the Editorial Board members who do most of the reviewing, there are many others who assist us in producing timely Articles and Research Notes six times a year. The more than a dozen members of the Editorial Team and the twenty Editorial Board members alone would not be able to handle and review the growing number of submissions that reach us now on an almost daily basis. We could not function without the selfless help of our esteemed external reviewers who read and critique the articles submitted to us.

Once a year we wish to thank these anonymous reviewers publicly by listing their names. For reviewing article submitted to Perspectives on Terrorism in 2018, we sincerely thank the individuals listed here:

Berger, Noemie Bouhana, Frank Bovenkerk, Neil Bowie, Kurt Braddock, Clairissa Breen, Sarah Carthy, Christina Cliff, Maura Conway, Luis de la Corte, Cori Dauber, Danny W.
