

Course description: NISIS Islamic Studies Network Day 2018

Title	NISIS Islamic Studies Network Day
Academic year	2017-2018
EC	1
Level	600
Language	English
Theme	To be announced
Keynote speakers	To be announced
Organised by	NISIS in collaboration with NOSTER
Hosted by	To be announced

Admission requirements

PhD candidates and research master students active in the field of Islamic Studies may apply for admission and should contact NISIS at nisis@hum.leidenuniv.nl.

NISIS junior members qualify automatically and do not need to apply for participation. However, they are required to register for the Islamic Studies Network Day via nisis@hum.leidenuniv.nl.

In order to gain 1 EC, participants must prepare a poster presentation and show active participation in the Network Day.

Description

The Islamic Studies Network Day provides an excellent opportunity for PhD candidates and research master students to acquaint themselves with the newest developments in their field of study and to exchange information and experiences with colleagues and specialists. PhD candidates and research master students within the field of Islamic Studies will be given the opportunity to display poster presentations about their research. During the day, plenty of opportunity for networking will be offered.

The network day will be organised in collaboration with the Netherlands School for Advanced Studies in Theology and Religion (NOSTER).

Course objectives

- Enlarging and deepening the already existing knowledge of Islam and Muslim societies
- Providing insight and participation in the current academic debate
- Introducing the candidates to an international network of scholars in the field

Course description NISIS Islamic Studies Network Day 2018. For programme details and updates, please visit www.nisis.nl.

- Creating an academic community in which research in the field of Islam and Muslim societies can be optimally pursued
- Mediating between a new generation of researchers and innovative disciplinary and interdisciplinary developments, theoretical and methodological initiatives and explorations in the field
- Training presentation and reflection skills.

Timetable

Friday 26 January 2018. Please make sure to be informed about programme details and updates via our website: www.nisis.nl.

Mode of instruction

- Lectures and workshop (to be announced)
- Poster presentation

Course load

Total course load for the course is 28 hours.
Attendance network day: 8 hours
Preparation poster presentation: 20 hours

Assessment method

PhD candidates and research master students will be judged on the basis of:

- attendance and active participation
- poster presentation

Application

The application deadline for participation in the NISIS Islamic Studies Network Day 2018 is to be announced. Please note that the number of available places is restricted.

NISIS junior members qualify automatically and do not need to apply for participation. However, they are required to register for the NISIS Islamic Studies Network Day via nisis@hum.leidenuniv.nl.

Website

www.nisis.nl