Crisis and Security Management

FACULTY

Faculty of Governance and Global Affairs

INSTITUTE

Institute of Security and Global Affairs (ISGA)

Content of the Programme

This programme focuses on the causes of (perceived) threats to security, the political and social construction of (in)security, the pattern of reactions to these threats, and prevention strategies and best practices. Crises and security issues are studied from a multidisciplinary, multi-actor, and multi-level approach. Crisis and Security Management offers you the choice of six specialisation tracks, each of which explores different aspects of crisis and security management; radicalisation and (counter)terrorism, intelligence and national security, war and peace, interpersonal violence, and cybersecurity.

Specialisations:

- ▶ Governance of Crisis
- ▶ Terrorism and Political Violence
- ▶ Cybersecurity Governance
- ▶ Intelligence and National Security
- ▶ War and Peace Studies
- ▶ Violence, Interventions, and Policing

A specialisation consists of a coherent set of courses aimed towards gaining specific skills and knowledge. You will choose one specialisation before the start of your programme, you cannot switch during the academic year.
