Additional Chart: Withdrawal from the Union

Chart 2 | 25a

Topic:

A Member State may decide to withdraw from the European Union.

Art. 50 TEU on withdrawal from the Union (introduced through the Lisbon revision)

Issues to be considered by a Member State contemplating withdrawal

Internal decision making on withdrawal

Art. 50(1) TEU:
Decision to withdraw from the Union in accordance with the Member State's own constitutional requirements

See Chart 2/25b

Arrangements with the Union for the withdrawal

Art. 50(2)-(4) TEU:
Negotiation and conclusion of the withdrawal agreement following the procedural rules under Union law, keeping in mind the legal effects of withdrawal

- There is no guarantee under Art. 50 TEU of a withdrawal agreement.
- Withdrawal may also take effect without such an agreement.

See Chart 2/25b, Chart 2/25c

Framework for the future relationship with the Union

Not regulated in Art. 50 TEU but referred to in Art. 50(2) TEU: „To be taken account of“ when negotiating and concluding the withdrawal agreement; see Chart 2/25b

- There is no guarantee under Art. 50 TEU of a suitable alternative arrangement.
- In principle the future framework for the relationship of the State in question with the Union is to be defined separately, possibly (but not necessarily) through an agreement.

See Chart 2/25d

Simultaneous negotiation

In particular from the perspective of the withdrawing Member State, ideally the withdrawal agreement and the framework for the future relationship with the Union are negotiated together.

Notes:

- So far, practical experience with Art. 50 TEU is lacking.
- Following the advisory referendum on EU membership of 23 June 2016, the UK is expected to become the first ever Member State to withdraw; see Chart 2/25b.

Additional Chart: Withdrawal procedure

Topic:

Article 50 TEU defines the withdrawal procedure.

Art. 50 TEU: withdrawal procedure

National decision to withdraw, Art. 50(1) TEU

„Any Member State may decide to withdraw from the Union in accordance with its own constitutional requirements.“

E.g. UK 2016:

- Advisory referendum vote of 23 June 2016: 48,1% Remain to 51,9% Leave („Brexite“).
- It appears to be disputed whether the actual decision to withdraw, and the right to trigger the EU procedure, is for the UK Government alone or whether it requires authorisation by an Act of the UK Parliament and/or the devolved assemblies of Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Withdrawal procedure on the level of the EU, Art. 50(2)-(4) TEU

Notification

Member State wishing to withdraw notifies the European Council of its intentions

Negotiation

Negotiation in accordance with Art. 218(3) TFEU of the withdrawal agreement:

- Containing arrangements for withdrawal,
- Taking account of the framework for the future relationship between the withdrawing State and the Union; see Chart 2/25d.

After two years

No

Has political agreement on the withdrawal agreement been reached?

Yes

Conclusion

Conclusion of the withdrawal agreement:

European Parliament consents to negotiation result

Conclusion on behalf of the Union by the Council (of Ministers), acting by a qualified majority, defined in accordance with Art. 238(3)(b) TFEU

Withdrawal without a withdrawal agreement

The Union Treaties cease to apply to the State in question in principle two years after notification (extension is possible); see Chart 2/25c.

Withdrawal with a withdrawal agreement

The Union Treaties cease to apply to the State in question from the date of entry into force of the withdrawal agreement, in accordance with this agreement; see Chart 2/25c.

Additional Chart: Effects of withdrawal

Topic:

The withdrawal of a Member State from the European Union has far-reaching legal effects.

Far-reaching legal effects of a withdrawal from the European Union

Legal starting point, Art. 50(3)TEU

„The Treaties shall cease to apply to the State in question from the date of entry into force of the withdrawal agreement or, failing that, two years after the notification referred to in paragraph 2, unless the European Council, in agreement with the Member State concerned, unanimously decides to extend this period.“

Notes:

- This implies amendments to Art. 52 TEU (list of Member States) and Art. 355 TFEU (territorial scope of the Treaties).
- The State in question might still be mentioned in the preamble of the TEU, which refers to the Member States of 1992 (signing of the Treaty). There might be a footnote stating the withdrawal.

Consequences of no longer being a Member State: examples

With respect to the Union's means and specific objectives, Art. 3(2)-(5) TEU

Area of freedom, security and justice

E.g.: if it participated in these sub-fields, the State in question is no longer part of the Schengen and Dublin systems.

Internal market

The State in question no longer belongs to the Union's internal market.

Economic and Monetary Union

E.g.: if it had adopted the euro, the State in question can no longer be a member of the Eurozone.

Relations with the wider world

E.g.: treaties concluded by the Union will no longer apply to the State in question. The State can/must conclude its own treaties.

With respect to EU citizenship, Art. 20 and 21 TFEU

The citizens of the State in question are no longer Union citizens, nor do they enjoy the rights based on that status (e.g. free movement, in particular for those who are not economically active, equal treatment in relation to social assistance, political participation).

Possibilities to address such issues on the level of the EU

See Chart 2/25d

The Development of European Integration

Additional Chart: Addressing issues raised by the withdrawal

Topic:

To some extent, the legal effects of a withdrawal from the European Union may be mitigated through the withdrawal agreement and/or an alternative arrangement for the future relations between the State in question and the Union.

Possibilities to address the legal effects of a withdrawal from the Union

Three main avenues on the level of the EU

Through the withdrawal agreement

May address certain effects through e.g.:

- Transitional rules;
- The protection of acquired rights, e.g. of citizens having exercised Union rights before the withdrawal of the State in question (maintenance of residence rights etc.).

Note:

Protection of acquired rights is not guaranteed through Art. 50 TEU, different from e.g. Art. 23 of the EU-Swiss Agreement on the free movement of persons.

Through an alternative arrangement for post-membership relations

Various possibilities in theory, notably:

- EFTA and EEA membership („Norway model“);
- Customs union („Turkey model“);
- Sectoral agreements („Switzerland model“);
- Free trade and investment agreement of the modern type („Canada model“);
- No special arrangement, WTO law only („Hong Kong model“).

Compare e.g. the UK Government report „Alternatives to Membership: possible models for the United Kingdom outside the European Union“ (May 2016)

Through rejoining the Union

Mentioned in Art. 50(5) TEU, though politically perhaps unlikely:

„If a State which has withdrawn from the Union asks to rejoin, its request shall be subject to the procedure referred to in Article 49.“

Potential challenges, if based on EU market access rules (see Council conclusions on a homogeneous extended single market, 2014)

Substance

Will an agreement providing for partial market access be possible?

E.g. UK: internal market minus full free movement of persons?

Institutional framework

What will be the rules on updating and interpreting the agreement as well as on international supervision and dispute settlement?

Compare Switzerland: current negotiations on these issues

Notes:

There may also be arrangements outside the EU, including e.g.:

- National rules on the immigration into the State in question;
- Conclusion of treaties with other states (though in the case of EU Member States only insofar as the EU does not enjoy an exclusive competence in the field in question; see Chart 4/2, Chart 4/7).
