

Roundtable discussion, 27 February 2020, 9-13.00h

Land rights and climate-induced displacement: the case of Mozambique

Leiden University, Faculty of Social Sciences, Wassenaarseweg 52, Room 5A23

Organisers: Carolien Jacobs and Bernardo Almeida, Van Vollenhoven Institute for Law, Governance and Society

Programme

- | | |
|---------------------|--|
| 9.00-9.15h | Arrival, registration |
| 9.15-9.30h | Welcome by organisers and introduction of the research project
Carolien Jacobs and Bernardo Almeida, Van Vollenhoven Institute, Leiden University |
| 9.30-9.45h | What are people's coping strategies to deal with the floods and to what extent are state interventions in line with these strategies?
Uacitissa Mandamule, Aix-Marseille University/Observatório do Meio Rural, Maputo |
| 9.45-10.00h | Which actions can/are taken at local levels to address climate-induced displacement and what are the challenges for local governments?
Murtah Shannon, Utrecht University |
| 10.00-10.15h | How adequate is the legal framework in dealing with land issues related to climate induced displacement?
Bernardo Almeida, Van Vollenhoven Institute, Leiden University |
| 10.15-10.30h | What can civil society contribute to promote secure access to land under changing climate conditions?
Bart Weijjs, Care Nederland |
| 10.30-11.00h | Coffee break |
| 11.00-12.00h | Further reflections by panellists and group discussion |
| 12.00-13.00h | Closure and lunch |